Investments and Profits

Almost anyone would consider an investment that pays an annual profit of 20 per cent as an extraordinary and highly desirable. Such an investment if put on the market for sale would be picked up quickly at a price considerably above par.

People who know will not take an investment that will more than pay for itself in three to five years, thus paying a profit of from 20 to 35 per cent. Every farmer has hundreds of dollars invested in implements that require protection from the weather. By investing a small sum in a stock he can prolong the life of the implements and thus make a good profit on his investment.
